Nicole Strickland will share paranormal evidence, findings, and stories from several investigations and case studies at well-known historic sites throughout Southern California and beyond. As part of this presentation, attendees will have the opportunity to view captivating anomalous photographs and video captures, as well as spine-tingling audio captures in the form of EVP (Electronic Voice Phenomena), AVP (Audible Voice Phenomena), and ITC (Instrumental Trans-Communication). Ms. Strickland will highlight how both objective and subjective findings shape a location's paranormal tapestry and understanding. Nicole will also discuss her team's approach to paranormal research, including methodologies, metaphysical practices, environmental monitoring, and types of equipment.

Nicole Strickland is a leading West Coast afterlife and paranormal researcher from San Diego, California. Her lifelong interest in the unknown began in early childhood. After seeing the apparition of her beloved grandmother, she's dedicated her life to studying the paranormal.

Nicole is the founder, director, and case manager of the reputable San Diego Paranormal Research Society and California Coordinator to the Ghost Research Society. She is a regular speaker at venues like libraries, schools, universities, and paranormal conferences. She also offers classes on paranormal investigative techniques, spirituality, and parapsychology.

Ms. Strickland is a bestselling author of several books about the paranormal and the afterlife and has contributed articles to magazines. She's renowned for her research on and deep knowledge of the iconic RMS Queen Mary in Long Beach, California.

Nicole has been featured on local and national television, documentary films, newspapers, magazines, and is frequently interviewed on radio shows and podcasts, including Coast to Coast. She is the host of The Afterlife Chronicles, which is consistently recognized by Feedspot as one of the top shows on the afterlife. She's soon debuting the Life Inspiration Project, a program that aspires to highlight inspirational people and events.
