One of the leading paranormal researchers on the West Coast, Nicole Strickland is the founder and director of the well-respected San Diego Paranormal Research Society (SDPRS). Since 2011, she has co-hosted the “Spirits of the Adobe” tours at the iconic Rancho Buena Vista Adobe. She serves as the California Coordinator for the Ghost Research Society and is also a consultant to various other investigative groups, including the American Spectral Society.

Nicole’s presentation serves as a motivator for those interested in learning more about paranormal research and investigation practices. Topics include the various branches of anomalous research; investigation methodologies, including audio experimentation, spirit photography, and environmental monitoring; types of equipment utilized; scientific versus metaphysical approaches; signs of a haunting/paranormal phenomena, standard operating procedures; the types of influences and potential causes of ghostly activity; spirit protection and grounding and more.

Blending her love of history, paranormal studies, and writing, Nicole has written several books, including Field Guide to Southern California Hauntings, The Haunted Queen of the Seas: The Living Legend of the RMS Queen Mary and many more. Nicole holds a B.A. degree in Media Arts / Journalism from the University of Arizona and an M.S. in Educational Counseling from National University.

There will be a question-and-answer session after her presentation, time permitting.
